An exhibit of mint stamps, postally used and philatelic covers postal stationery and other items most stamps have Scott numbers. Included are examples of unique postal items such as specimens, over-prints, trial color stamps, full sheets, plate blocks, maxi-cards, and artist proofs.

Colonel Robert. Lord Baden-Powell commanded forces in the besieged city of Mafeking during the Boer War of 1900. He used young soldiers as messengers and scouts during this siege. He remembered these brave young men after the war forming the organization known as the Boy Scouts. The organization began when he took several young boys camping on Brownsea Island, off the English coast. From this wee beginning grew an organization which includes more than a hundred countries and thousands of boys around the world.

One of the most popular activities is the Jamboree. Boys from all over one country go to national jamborees. Once every four years, more or less, a World Jamboree is held. Scouts go to these events, chosen as representatives from their country, to make international friendships, and find out about the lives of Scouts from other countries. While they are camped together they share meals, compete in camp and outdoor events, and join each other in friendship over camp fires, learning that we are all truly from one world.

There was no philatelic recognition made these early World Jamborees. The first was held in 1920, at Olympia, London England 8,000 Scouts from 33 countries attended. The 1924 Second World Jamboree was held at Ermelunden, Copenhagen, Denmark with 5,000 Scouts from 34 countries attending. A third was held in 1929, Arrowe Park, Birkenhead, England. An incredible 50,000 Boy Scouts from 42 nations attended.

The philatelic history of World Jamborees illustrated in this exhibit began with the Fourth Jamboree held in 1933.
